13 UNIONS JOIN SHIP STRIKE AT HONGKONG

No Large Boats Plying On River To Canton

EUROPEANS WORK

Men From Shipping Offices Help Move Cargoes

(Kuo Wen News Agency)

Hongkong, Feb. 3.—Thirteen organisations have declared a strike here in sympathy with the Seamen's Union. There are no large steamers plying between Canton and Hongkong.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Hongkong, Feb. 3.—The European staffs of the shipping offices are assisting in discharging cargo from arrivals to the godowns.

PATROL STREETS

Hongkong, Feb. 2.—Naval pickets patrolled the streets last night as a precautionary measure.

Recruiting of Ningpo seamen to take the places of the striking Cantonese at Hongkong is still going on in Shanghai as the status of the strike remains unchanged according to latest advices. The contingent of 161 strikebreakers recruited here for the China Mail liner China did not go to Hongkong on the Keystone State yesterday as arranged because of some hitch in the proceedings. The company is now awaiting further advices from their Hongkong office before shipping the men.

Strikebreakers are also said to be taking advantage of the situation by demanding more money than the Cantonese and their demands have further complicated the situation. Estimates are that at the most only three crews can be recruited here and other lines will be forced to use other men.

The Monteagle with one hundred first class passengers and a large quantity of cargo is still tied up and the Canadian Pacific has reached no decision as to what to do, it is said, as the ship carries a crew of 200 Chinese whose places are difficult to fill.

The Golden State, which is expected to arrive here tomorrow morning, is scheduled to sail on Sunday for Manila and Hongkong with a Chinese crew. Just what the Pacific Mail intends doing about the Golden State, is unknown, although it is said a Filipino crew will be picked up at Manila as insurance against the vessel being tied up when it arrives at Hongkong unless the strike is settled by that time.

The waterfront here is quiet and there is no indication that the strike will spread outside of Hongkong despite pessimistic forecasts. The Empress of Asia, due in Hongkong on February 18, will go into drydock there for annual overhaul, and is not scheduled to sail until March 23 so it will not be effected by the strike.

The Prince was cordially acclaimed by large crowds all along the routes.

Changes Asked In Debt Funding Bill

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, Feb. 2.—The Government is objecting to the maximum duration and minimum interest of the bonds under the Allied Debts Funding Bill, and suggests as an alternative a maximum of fifty years and a minimum interest of 4 percent. It does not, however, insist on this.

Hope For Entente Between North And South Dissipated

(Reuter's Service)

London, Feb. 2.—The hopes for the development of an entente between Ulster and the Southern Parliament have been somewhat dashed by the official announcement, after an interview between Mr. Michael Collins and Sir James Craig in Dublin lasting two and a half hours that no further agreement had been reached and that a most serious situation had arisen.

It is understood that the difference is connected with the question of the revision of the boundaries.

Belfast, Feb. 2.—The general strike on Irish railroads, scheduled to take place tonight, has been postponed a month according to advices from Dublin.

Japanese Mission Greeted By French

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, Feb. 2.—The Japanese Trade Mission was presented to President Millerand today by Viscount Ishii, and subsequently was entertained to lunch at the Inter-Allied Club by the General Federation of French Manufacturers. The Minister of Commerce emphasised the advantage of the personal contact between Japan and France, afforded by the Mission's visit. He alluded to the appointment of M. Roger as Commercial Attache to the French Embassey at Tokio, and suggested the creation of mixed Chambers of Commerce to assist in the development of trade relations.

The Mission will split up into groups and visit various parts of France on the conclusion of its stay in Paris.

ARBUCKLE CASE

(China Press Service)

San Francisco, Cal., Feb. 2.—The Arbuckle manslaughter case went to the jury at 3:42 p.m., after the defense had waived its closing arguments. The defense also waived its sur-rebuttal testimony. One prosecution attorney argued for an hour and a half.

Progressives In Japan Would Buy Manchuria As Cure For National Ills

If This Could Be Done All Of Nippon's Troubles Would End, They Argue; Liberals Favor Policy Of Conciliation All Along Line

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, Jan. 30.—The thinking element in Japan today is divided into two camps. There is the conservative camp, whose adherents view the results of the Washington Conference with a sense of uneasiness and feel that Japan has fallen a prey to the designs of the United States and the European Powers. In this body there is the general belief that Japan should follow along the path of the past fifty years, well covered, as it were, by a military and naval convoy. Quite contrary to this sentiment is that of the progressives, who believe that Japan now has her golden opportunity and that the way is open to her to become one of the leaders in the uplift of civilisation and find for herself an international haven of peace and security without spending half her income on armaments.

The latter school maintains that Japan's future is bound up in the answers to three questions. The first is, what to do with the ever-increasing population? the second, can she get a sufficient supply of food? and the third is where can she obtain raw material? China, of course, is the natural place of supply; but even China has her grain laws and Japan must search in other directions. Emigration would be one way out, but practically all Powers bar Japanese immigrants. The progressives say that the answer to the three questions lies in Japan's maintaining the friendliest relations with the other Powers and by peaceful means securing a hearing from the nations of the world of the problems Japan must meet. They even go so far as to say that an international arrangement might be brought about whereby Japan could purchase Mongolia and Manchuria from China. This would, they declare, settle all three questions for Japan for all time to come.

More advanced even than those whose opinion has just been expressed are the progressives of the Ozaki and Shimada type. They claim that what is happening now is just what happened when Commodore Perry forced upon the doors of Japan to the rest of the world. Now the United States through the Washington Conference, with the other nations, is forcing Japan to abandon the militaristic policy. There are some, these leaders say, as there were during Perry's time, who fear the policy of the rest of the world towards Japan and their fears are just as groundless today as the fears of their predecessors were sixty years ago. The opportunity is here, they claim, and it is the duty of Japan to assume her position as one of the leaders of civilisation and aim at the happiness of mankind, disregarding for the time the immediate question of small national interests. With past errors amended, and persuading others to follow in her wake, the clouds of suspicion would be cleared away and Japan would realise what she needs to make of herself great and progressive nation. So, at least, the advanced progressives argue.

GERMANY'S RAIL TIE-UP COMPLETE; BERLIN ISOLATED

Only Two Trains Leave Capital During Day; Leaders Arrested

(Reuter's Service)

Berlin, Feb. 2.—Although restricted to engine drivers, guards and train attendants the strike has virtually tied up all passenger and goods traffic. Only two trains left Berlin today.

The police have seized several million marks of the strikers' funds lying in the banks.

Two strike leaders have been arrested.

The city and suburban trains are not running.

Berlin, Feb. 2.—The general strike of railwaymen arising from the wages dispute has begun. It was preceded yesterday by a general exodus from Berlin, when many thousands thronged the stations. Towns like Breslau and Frankfurt on the Oder are isolated.

The situation in the South and Southwest is much brighter, the engine drivers at Munich have refused to come out. The Bavarian railways are almost normal as well as most of the Wurtemberg and Baden railways.

It is not expected that the strike will last long.

Little disposition towards violence is manifested. The canals are being utilised for the transportation of foodstuffs etcetera.

Staff officials are being organised to drive and stoke the trains.

PLAN DRASTIC ACTION

(Special To The China Press)

Berlin, Feb. 1.—The government announced that aggressive measures will follow in the event of a railroad strike. It is pointed out that the workers swore to support the government and all will be prosecuted if there is a strike. The leaders are hiding in fear of arrest, and only the most radical laborites are openly in approval of the strike.

Commission To Decide Claims

Washington, Jan. 31.—The White House today issued a statement declaring that war claims between the United States and Germany would be handled by a commission through a treaty between the two nations. The statement denied that the United Staes would join European countries on a mixed commission.

Three Killed In French-German Dispute On Rhine

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, Feb. 3.—A telegram from Gleiwitz, Upper Silesia, states that two Germans were killed in the affray with French soldiers on the occasion of searches for arms. Several arrests have been made, and hidden depots of arms discovered, including machine-guns and mine-throwers. One of the French soldiers wounded has died.

The Inter-Allied authorities are reported to have seized a wagon from Germany containing bombs.

Few Changes In U. S. Trade Outlook

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, Feb. 1.—The Federal Reserve Board's Monthly Review declares that production and trade show no striking departures.

There has been a sensational slackening of certain manufactures, but in a number of lines activity has been well sustained.

The tendency towards the stabilisation of prices continues.

There is increased activity in iron, but the position in the steel industry is unchanged.

Textiles show but little improvement. The silk trade is depressed owing to the material rise in raw silk having militated against orders for future delivery.

Mrs. Jack De Saulles To Wed Again

MRS. Bianca Erraguriz De Saulles is soon to marry again. The news of her new romance came over the cables from Santiago, Chile. Her fiance is Fernando Santa Cruz, a young engineer. No date has been set for the wedding. During the past four years Mrs. De Saulles has been living in Chile with her family, which is wealthy. Two members of the family have been Presidents of Chile. Little Jack De Saulles, whose father, John Longer De Saulles, former football star and real estate broker, was shot so dramatically August 3, 1917, is with her. Mrs. De Saulles won great sympathy at her trial, which led to an acquittal at Mineola, L. I., in the early Fall of 1917, by her beauty, her tragic demeanor and the story of her unhappy married life. She was sixteen when she married De Saulles. Little Jack was the unwitting cause of his father's death by childish prattle to his mother of other women whom the former football star had taught him to call "mother." The little fellow told her that his father had told him that he must learn to love his mother's rivals as much as "Bumpy," which was his mother's pet name.

Discoverer Of Arctic Oil Fields In City; Tells Of Dash North

By Elsie McCormick

Leader in a race between rival oil companies to a point on the Arctic Coast one thousand miles north of Nome, Mr. R. D. Adams of San Francisco, at present a visitor in Shanghai, made the sensational discovery last summer of tremendous oil-fields on the Northernmost rim of the American continent. It is Mr. Adams' belief, as the result of his investigations, that the future world's supply of petroleum will be drawn to a large extent from the vast, oozing fields on the Arctic coastal plain.

The story of the dash to the North, made under the impetus of competition between two great companies, is as full of adventurous incidents as a race between rival explorers to the Pole. Long trekking over the muck of the great tundras, slow progress through watery lanes in the Arctic pack, days of following a sluggish and silent river to its mouth, the final discovery of the black ooze that seeped up through the tundra moss and the staking of a claim a week before the arrival of the second party give the expedition a place in the chapters of commercial romance. Articles published when the success of the party was first made known to the world stated that the dash had been won by the use of airplanes. Mr. Adams denies this report and further states that the irregularities of the ice-packs, the geographical uncertainties, and all the strange tricks that air and water play in the vicinity of the pole will doubtless make the use of airplanes in the North forever impractical.

RUMORS OF OIL

For many years rumors of oil in the vast treeless tableland of the Arctic had drifted through Eskimo igloos, desolate trading-posts, and log villages. Prospectors who, in the Klondike days, pushed up from Nome to Point Barrow, came back with tales of difficult mushing through long stretches of black pitch. Veins of gold are not to be found in the extreme North, and the sourdoughs who tramped discouraged over the pitch beds and cursed the soil for its heavy going apparently never had the slightest conception that they were walking over ground richer than any mine of the Klondike.

Corroboration of the oil rumors and definite geographical data were supplied last Spring by one "Scotty" Smith, who had spent forty years on

POINCARE WANTS POWERS TO FORM GENOA PROGRAM

French Premier Sends Bids For Preliminary Conference

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, Feb. 3.—Premier Poincare has invited the Allied Goveernments to a preliminary consultation with a view to adopting a common line of conduct as regards the Genoa Conference.

The French Government's qualms regarding the outcome of the European Conference is indicated in a semi-official statement that M. Poincare is dissatisfied with the vagueness of the wording of the Genoa program. It declares that the passage "the establishment of the peace of Europe on stable foundations" must not entail a modification of the existing treaties, also that the Upper Silesian settlement and the reparations problem cannot be reopened, and concludes that if France does not obtain her payments or guarantees she will be constrained to reserve liberty of action.

Berlin, Feb. 2.—Vice Admiral Hollweg declared that the Genoa conference will fail unless the United States participates. He said that the arms conference was largely successful "because the building program was already bankrupt."

JAPAN WITHDRAWS FIVE OF TWENTYONE DEMANDS

Conciliatory Action Announced At Meeting Of The Far Eastern Committee Of The Disarmament Conference At Washington

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, Feb. 2.—At the meeting of the Far Eastern Committee today the Japanese delegates announced the withdrawal of five of the Twenty One Demands.

The above brief, but significant dispatch from Reuter's correspondent at Washington may mean much, or nothing at all. It will be recalled that seven of the original twenty-one demands, constituting "Group Five," never were enforced, and if the above dispatch refers to them it is, for all practical purposes, meaningless. If, however, it refers to a withdrawal of five of the remaining fourteen demands, it is fraught with great significance. Until the dispatch is amplified no intelligent opinion can be ventured as to its meaning.

(Eastern News Agency)

Peking, February 3.—The Waichiaopu (foreign office) announced today that with regard to the Shantung issue the Chinese delegates to the Washington Conference had notified the Central Government that the following items have been agreed upon:

(1) Kiaochow shall be restored to China.

(2) The Maritime Customs shall be turned over completely to the management of China.

(3) Japan shall abandon the rights she acquired from Germany.

(4) Public properties shall be returned to China without any condition, but those built by Japan after the Japanese occupation of Kiaochow shall be redeemed at proper fixed prices. Roads, waterworks parks, etc., shall all be possessed by China. Power-stations, slaughter-houses, and wash-houses shall be held by China to be taken over by merchants. Telephones shall be owned by the Government.

(5) China agrees to open Kiaochow as a commercial port and permit foreigners to reside and carry on therein such commercial and industrial businesses as are within the law, whereas Japan agrees to establish therein neither exclusive settlements nor international ones. China acknowledges those properties as legal which have been possessed by Germans or other foreign nationals during the Japanese occupation through proper formalities.

(6) The funds required for the completion of the railways between Shunteh and Tsinan and between Kaomi and Hsuchow shall be supplied by an international financiers' group. The railway between Chefoo and Weihsien shall be constructed at the expense of China, but in case foreign capital is wanted, it shall be provided by the said international financiers' group.

(7) Japan shall withdraw her railway garrison as soon as China completes police forces to protect the railways in Shantung. The evacuation shall be carried out sectionally in the course of three months and shall by no means be delayed longer than six months at the latest. The Tsingtao garrison shall all be withdrawn within thirty days after the surrender of Tsingtao.

(8) The cables between Tsingtao and Chefoo and between Tsingtao and Shanghai shall be restored to China, while the cable between Tsingtao and Sasebo be held by Japan. The wireless between Tsingtao and Tsinan shall be redeemed by China at a reasonable price after the withdrawal of Japanese troops.

(9) The Chinese Government specially agrees to place the three mines, namely, Tzuchuan, Fangtsu and Chinlingchen under Sino-Japanese joint management, but funds to be provided by Japan shall not exceed Chinese funds.

(10) Salt-fields shall be redeemed by China at reasonable prices.

With regard to the railway between Tsingtao and Tsinan, the delegates of Japan and China had much discussion and were unable to come to terms, but through the good offices of Great Britain and the United States, they have at length arrived at an agreement as follows:

"Japan agrees that China will redeem the said railway in 15 years by China's treasury bonds. It is also agreed that China may redeem it immediately, provided she pays all the balance after the expiration of five years. China is authorised to appoint a Chinese managing director of the said railway. Pending the completion of the redemption of the railway, Japan is authorised to have a traffic manager. Japan and China shall each have a chief accountant respectively."

MERCHANTS AT ICHANG FEAR NEW OUTBREAK

Gates Being Built At Both Ends Of Every Street; Militia Organised

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Ichang, Jan. 26.—Reference has been made to the fact that the merchants of Ichang are taking precautions against future possible events by building gates at either end of all the streets both within and without the city. In all 180 gates or barricades have been erected, the cost of which is estimated roughly at $10,000. To protect these and also to give some additional local guarantee of safety the Chamber of Commerce is now raising two companies (of about 100 men each) of soldiers, who are to be known as "The Merchant Militia." Each company will be under a lieutenant, and it is reported that the cost of these companies will be nearly $4,000 per month. Presumably some of this money will come from the indemnity which was sent to the Chamber of Commerce by the former Tuchun for the June looting. The sum was so insignificant that it could not be divided amongst the losers.

Sinister rumors are in circulation to the effect that the "Divine soldiers," who made so much trouble in the Shinan district last spring and of whom many were killed at Wanhsien later, are again on the war path. One person here has had news that 2,000 of them assembled around Shinan recently and were encamped outside the South Gate of the town.

Cardinals Meet To Elect New Pope

(China Press Service)

Rome, Feb. 1.—The Cardinals tonight are entering seclusion for the election conclave which opens tomorrow. Sufficient food for a long session is stored in the Vatican.

Those in close touch with the proliminary proceedings believe that neither the "irreconcilables" nor the "peace party" can elect their candidates without the aid of the "moderates." It is understood that the foreign cardinals will support the "moderate" candidate who will follow the policies laid down by Pope Benedict XV.

American Cable Service Resumed

Cable communication with the Philippines and America via the Commercial Pacific Cable Company's line has been restored.

(Reuter's Service)

London, Feb. 3.—A Washington despatch states that the brilliant results of the closing stages of the Conference have converted numerous sceptics but the Senate oppositionists are voicing some dissatisfaction at the limitation of fortifications as affecting Guam, the Philippine Islands and the Aleutians.

A correspondent of the Westminster Gazette telegraphs, in this connection, that those still reserving their commendation of the work of the Conference argue that the advantages are still with Japan. The correspondent expresses the opinion, however, that any magnificent gesture on the part of Japan, say, with regard to Siberia, or, of generous co-operation with China, would quickly revive the optimistic views generally held three months ago but lately absent.

The Morning Post says that some of China's enthusiastic American supporters consider that Shantung and its supplementary settlements have given China everything. This view, however, is not likely entirely to be endorsed by the Chinese, at least until the Twenty-One Demands discussion is concluded.

The Chinese delegates present their case on this question at today's meeting of the Far Eastern Committee.

The restoration of Shantung and Weihaiwei has also provoked a query regarding Kwangchowwan, on which the Daily Mail quotes a statement by M. Sarraut repeating M. Viviani's declaration of France's readiness to participate in a collective restitution of Chinese territories, subject to the safe-guarding of private interests. M. Sarraut explained that France was ready to proceed to an examination with China of the conditions of the restoration of Kwangchowwan.

The delegates hope to receive the final opinions of the Far Eastern Committee today in order to conclude all questions before the plenary session of tomorrow and then adjourn sine die.

BAN POISON GAS

(Special To The China Press)

Washington, Feb. 2.—The fifth section of the chemical and submarine warfare treaty provides the following: "The use of asphyxiating, poisonous and other gases and all liquid materials or devices having justly been condemned by the public opinion of the civilised world is prohibited."

(China Press Service)

Washington, Feb. 1.—Unless plans miscarry, the Arms Conference will shortly give the world eight treaties, whereof the United States is party to seven. They are enumerated as follows:

The Quadruple Pacific treaty, signed on December 13th.

The Quintuple Naval Treaty, to be signed shortly.

The Quintuple Submarine and Poison Gas Treaty, which is now ready for signature.

The Sextuple Treaty allocating cables, in process of drafting.

The Nine-Power Treaty affecting Chinese tariffs, which is still being drafted.

The Nine-Power Treaty affecting other Chinese questions.

The American-Japanese Yap treaty, virtually ready for signature.

The Sino-Japanese treaty on Shantung, now near completion.

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, Feb. 1.—The announcement of the settlement of the Shantung question at the plenary session of the Conference by Mr. Hughes was received with loud applause and evoked expressions of deep satisfaction by the delegates.

Baron Shidehara thanked Mr. Balfour and Mr. Hughes for their good offices.

Mr. Alfred Sze said he believed that the settlement would remove all possibility of Sino-Japanese misunderstanding.

Mr. Balfour declared that Britain was most gratified at the settlement owing to her interests in the Far East. He added that Britain was ready to return the Weihaiwei leasehold.

The Plenary Session of the Conference today also adopted without discussion the resolutions regarding foreign post offices in China, the withdrawal of foreign troops, the open door, and the Chinese railways, and also the declaration of the Powers asking China to reduce her military forces, and a resolution for the publication of foreign commitments regarding China.

Mr. Hughes announced that the Chinese Tariff resolution would be temporarily postponed, but would subsequently be embodied in the Customs tariff.

The Conference also adopted the China wireless resolution.

The Conference also has adopted the treaty prohibiting the use of poison gas and limiting submarine warfare.

(China Press Service)

GAMBLERS BREAK THROUGH WALL TO ESCAPE POLICE

When several squads of police from Central Station descended upon an establishment at 70 Toong Gee Bae-ka, off Honan Road a portion of a throng of upwards a hundred who were caught gambling pushed down a wall of the building and escaped, according to testimony given yesterday in the Mixed Court. Though about sixty players escaped in this manner 23 were arrested in addition to the proprietor of the place and his assistant.

The proprietor was fined $200, his assistant $50 and each of the 23 players $5 each at the conclusion of the hearing. A large quantity of gambling paraphernalia taken in the raid has been confiscated.

Polish Woman Wins Acquittal At Mixed Court

A Polish woman, Julia Reibekel, who was charged with being in unlawful possession of several rolls of silk and other dress materials was discharged by Assessor Hutchison and Magistrate Tsang of the Mixed Court yesterday, the evidence against her being regarded as insufficient. She was severely cautioned by the court, however, against shoplifting, in which she admitted having been active in other cities.

The woman was arrested by Detective-Sergeants Smith and Hendry at 6 Quinsan Road. They found a large black bag made to hang from the neck, such as is used by shoplifters, and while they were questioning her regarding the silks found she threw this into the fire and it was destroyed. The accused declared to the court that she had either purchased or been given the various materials on which the charge was based.

Publishers Object To Radio Control

(China Press Service)

Washington, Feb. 1.—Joseph Medill Patterson of the Chicago Tribune, chairman of the American Publishers' Association, appeared before a Senate committee today and charged that the Radio Corporation of America is seeking a monopoly on the Atlantic.

William Brown and R. A. Ford of the Radio Corporation and H. H. Admas of the General Electric Company protested against the bill extending for five years the authority of the Navy radio to handle press. They asked that the extension be limited to two years.

Shackleton Will Rest In Antarctic

(Reuter's Service)

London, Feb. 3.—The Daily Mail learns that Lady Shackleton has decided that Sir Ernest's body shall be taken from Montevideo to South Georgia for interment, instead of having it brought home, as originally proposed, although Sir Ernest left no definite instructions regarding his last resting place.

Lady Shackleton believes that the great explorer would have wished to have been laid to rest at the gate of the Antarctic—the scene of his greatest exploit.

MEDICS HOLDING LAST SESSION OF MEETING TODAY

Fourth Annual Conference Of China Association To Be Brought To Close

Following upon the notable address of Dr. Wu Lien-teh on "The Plague in Manchuria," which was one of the outstanding features of yesterday's sessions of the conference of The National Medical Association of China, another address on the same general subject will be the opening feature of today's program of the conference. This will be given by Dr. S. N. Tang on the subject of "Plague Prevention in North Manchuria," and will be followed by a discussion.

One other address that will be given at the final session of the conference today will be another paper by Dr. Wu Lien-teh and this will be on the subject of "Methods of Preventing Infectuous Diseases."

At the conclusion of these addresses and discussions on them the business meeting of the conference will be held and officers will be elected. This will constitute the final business of the conference. In the evening a dinner will be given at the Yih Ping Shang Hotel followed by a midnight theater party.

Yesterday's program of the conference included a number of interesting papers read by well-known Chinese doctors from Peking, Soochow and elsewhere.

At the morning session Dr. Z. D. Dzen of Soochow read a paper on the treatment of pulmonary tuberculosis, which was listened to with great interest.

Dr. T. Y. Wong in his paper discussed whether Chinese empiricial medicine was worthy of investigation. He said that Chinese medicine had only a historical interest. Former discoveries had involved a good deal of work, he said, but later on people did not follow these up. Chinese doctors depended on their experience.

The principles of Chinese medicine, he said, were not right. He expressed the hope that Chinese medicine would die out entirely as there was no use for it today because it preserved old ideas that were not scientifically correct. Chinese medical books could be used in the museum for their historical interest, but not for reference of study. There was very little in favor of retaining such medical science.

"The Bacteriological Diagnosis of Cholera" was the subject given by Dr. Edgar T. H. Tsen of the Union Medical School of Peking. Dr. K. V. Lo read a paper on the present status of cancer. The paper was written by Dr. J. H. Llu, but owing to his absence from here it was read by proxy.

DR. WU'S ADDRESS

The address that was given at the afternoon session of the conference yesterday on the subject of "The Plague in Manchuria" by Dr. Wu Lien-teh was a particularly valuable and interesting contribution. Doctor Wu is perhaps the leading authority in China on the subject of the pneumonic plague and aside from its technical phases his address was full of interest for the layman, as he dealt intimately with conditions in Manchuria as they existed through the dread period when the plague of 1921 held the northern provinces in thrall. Of especial interest was the film shown at the conclusion of the address. This may be regarded as a wholly unique moving picture, as it was taken when the epidemic was at its height and shows in the most realistic manner the sufferings of the people and the distress that was wrought.

GUARANTEED SCRUBBABLE

W.H.C. SUPER-DURABLE FLAT PAINT

FLAT WALL FINISH

A perfect Paint of smooth surface for Interior Wall Coating

The surface obtainable with this paint is smooth and flat, i.e., it is not a grainy, dead, lifeless finish, but of a velvety texture. It dries in a reasonably quick time, so that work can be carried out effectively, yet has the property of remaining open long enough to enable the worker to cover a large surface of wall without making laps or edges.

Excellent results with Super Durable Flat Finish are easily obtained, irrespective of the skill of the user, and an elaborate preparation of the surface is usually quite unnecessary.

Super Durable Flat Finish has been tried on non-absorbent surfaces of all kinds and where distemper and oil paint have proved prone to shell or flake off, it has always adhered. It gives a lasting finish of surprising beauty.

1 Imperial Gallon covers about 130 square yards one coat.

the Northern polar frontier. Two companies acted on the information by equipping expeditions with all possible speed. Mr. Adams, whose experience in the Klondike and in Northern Siberia had given him an intimate knowledge of the Arctic, led a small party of surveyors and geologists out of Nome in June of last year.

After several days of smooth going in a small schooner, in sight of both the Siberian coast and the Alaska shore, the party had the adventure of being caught in the swirl of the Northern ice-pack. Early in July the ice in the Behring Sea breaks up and begins to move in a great grinding mass toward the pole. Driven by swift seas, it churns and mills its way across the Arctic, to the terror of every craft that happens to intrude into its line of march.

Carried up to the edge of the polar cap, it meets other currents that turn it South again and by October it has drifted back to Behring Sea. The schooner of the oil expedition was overtaken by the pack and for many days it traveled a precarious route in the watery lanes between the broken floes. Once another part of the pack was seen moving slowly in the distance. The schooner took hasty refuge behind the most substantial-looking iceberg in the neighborhood and shortly afterwards there was a crashing, grinding and rending as the two great ice-fields smashed together. Masses of ice weighing twenty tons were hurled high into the air, there was sufficient noise to equip forty avalanches, and the berg behind which the schooner had hidden shook and shivered under the repeated impacts. For a time it looked as if the oil expedition was going to be knocked for a row of green upholstered walruses.

POOR MIXTURES

Finding that a schooner and an ice-pack mix about as well as an egg-shell and an anvil, the party left the larger craft for a couple of Eskimo skinboats. An Eskimo skin-boat sits closer to the water than a lily-pad, and if you have two cigars in one vest-pocket and only one in the other it is likely to upset. Consider the fact that after all the baggage had been carefully parted in the middle, it was necessary to pile on top of it several lively dogs with no respect for equilibrium and you have a fair idea of pleasure-touring North of the Arctic circle. The additional facts that an Eskimo skin-boat which springs a leak cannot be caulked and that the hardiest of swimmers could not last five minutes in the waters of the polar sea also helped the oil party to enjoy its excursion.

After traveling almost as far North as one can go without getting off the map into the reading-matter, the expedition struck inland over the tundra. We used to think that a tundra was a kind of Russian dance, but we have learned since that in the Arctic at least it is a dismal treeless plain, covered by a foot of muck and moss and twenty feet of ice. The party followed a chain of lakes, carrying the boats when there was no lake available and putting all its spare energy into fighting the mosquitoes. Yes, we said mosquitoes. Mr. Adams assured us, as we showed the facade of our teeth in an open-mouthed stare of incredulity, that the Arctic mosquitoes are the only original man-eating, thumb-off-at-a-time specie and that in comparison the Jersey variety are as gentle as a loving mother. They have a proboscis, he says, as sharp as a steel drill and a desposition like a lemon squash. They cheerfully breed in snow-water and are fond of tracing their monograms on the countenances of explorers.

Outside of the mosquitoes, the only game birds to be found in the Far North are the millions of ducks and geese who take apartments there for the summer in order to raise families. A scientist of the expedition estimated that 700,000 ducks flew over a given point in one day, though Mr. Adams admits that he might have counted in some of the mosquitoes by mistake.

LONG HIKES

After long days of forced marches on the tundra, the party found the headwaters of the Inaru River and followed the cold, sluggish stream to its mouth in the Arctic. Here, within sight of the Northernmost ocean, they struck the great fields of blackish muck that interfered so with the progress of the early gold-seekers. Hastily staking out a modest portion of 500 acres, they planted their claims in tomato cans to legalise their find and to furnish a little interesting reading matter for the rival expedition.

The expectations of the party were not disappointed. Oil gathered in lakes, oozed from hillsides, and turned part of the tundra into a swamp. When we suggested to Mr. Adams that riding a few barrels of oil at a time on an Eskimo boat was hardly profitable from the standpoint of modern commerce, we were told that the corporation is planning to build a three-hundred mile pipe-line to a point on the Behring Sea that is open to navigation eight months of the year. The fact that Northernmost America is very much closer to the Orient than more Southerly coast will make the new fields a logical source of supply for the Orient. During the short Arctic summer, temperature on the tundra ranges from 34 to 65 degrees, so that workers there would endure less inconvenience from the weather than a winter resident of Shanghai.

Development, however, will take years and cost millions. Only the fact that the fields are in the hands of a wealthy corporation will make possible the use of the supply. But at least the world now knows that under the ice-cap of the North is enough oil to keep the axis of the earth properly lubricated for many generations to come.

EDUCATORS IN HONAN SEEKING STANDARDISATION

Christian Schools Hope To Improve Working Methods

(China Press Correspondence)

Kaifeng, Ho., Feb. 1.—The Honan Christian Educational Association is striving to standardise the school work done in the Christian schools and to be a medium of exchange of ideas and working methods.

Christian schools have a great opportunity to make an impress on the students of this province since the educational condition of Honan is not good and most of the government schools are poorly equipped and staffed. There is no school of college grade in the province whether governmental or mission. In recent years there has been a noticeable improvement in the schools supported by the government in this city but political agitation, bickerings, lack of funds and sometimes scandals in school management have hampered progress but there has been progress nevertheless, though at the present rate of advancement many years will be required to bring the school up to a plane worthy of the great province.

Brigandage and famine continue to affect the province; the former is quite widespread and usually takes the form of kidnapping a wealthy farmer and holding him for ransom. The victim is compelled to sell or mortgage his land to redeem himself. This is a good way to encourage land distribution and prevent the accumulating of too much worldly substance! This kidnapping business is one of the most flourishing in Honan and has been going on, to this writer's knowledge over ten years, long before the Soviets parcelled out the estates in Russia. Executions have not dampened the ardor of the kidnappers, though many have been shot. They usually have modern rifles which they know how to use. Not long ago some soldiers stationed in a city to the south of Kaifeng set out to hunt for a band of these brigands and were informed by the farmers that they had their lair in a certain place, whereupon the soldiers turned and began to make a dilligent search in another direction where these desperadoes were not so likely to be found. The soldiers have come off second best a number of times in their battles with these men who are possibly discharged or deserting soldiers.

The famine district is in the eastern part of the province and the suffering is caused by the unusual rainfall last summer which drowned out the crops along the streams and in low lying places. The Southern Baptist Mission has recently received a grant of twenty thousand dollars gold to relieve distress around Kweiteh and the city of Pochow, Anhwei which lies just across the Honan border.

CHANG'S NEW PLAN

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Jan. 31.—It is reported that General Chang Tso-lin has made further representations to the Government urging the adoption of his plan to make Chahar, Jehol and Suiyuan three provincial areas each with a Governor and Provincial Assembly.

Feudal Times Were Aid To Chinese Civilisation

"Was feudalism an advance or a retrogression?" asked Mrs. W. W. Bartlett in her paper on the Chou dynasty delivered before the Literary Department of the American Woman's Club yesterday afternoon at the Royal Asiatic Rooms. "To become acquainted with the past you must read five cartloads of books" says an old Chinese proverb, and though Mrs. Bartlett stated that the Feudal Period had been but inadequately dealt with by Western authors, her paper certainly showed a grasp of historic principle and a knowledge of the incidents of the period which were most comprehensive.

This feudal sytsem, instituted by Wu Wang, the only strong ruler of the dynasty, was "most unsystematic" but its general theory was that, being superimposed upon conquered principalities its success depended upon the consent of the governed. Public law had failed and private law came to take its place. Theoretically each state was given considerable liberty in local affairs. They were not to encroach upon the lands of others but were to visit each other and maintain friendly relations, informing each other of important events within their own boundaries. The number of war chariots was regulated and the central government was pledged to consider the best interests of all the tributaries.

In practice this constitution was a dead letter and might gradually took the place of right, though in the palmy days of feudalism the personal intercourse between the king and the princes was very friendly and the principle of the balance of power prevented any open warfare.

Finally, however, the smaller states were swallowed up by larger ones and the power of the king became merely nominal while the most powerful princes skirmished for supremacy without considering the leader of the dynasty, which only continued because enough barbarians had not entered the association of states to overthrow the traditions of the older civilisation.

Many historians call the feudal system unmitigatedly bad and its record is certainly black enough to deserve its being described as "the fruitful mother of ages of anarchy," and "a blight on Chinese civilisation." Nevertheless, historians of wider vision, such as Legge and Wells say that the disorder of this period was only the logical result of the previous dynasty, that it showed great enlargement of achievement, and that its competition in arms and diplomacy called China to its highest stages of civilisation. Painful as was the process of infusing new blood into the Chinese system the result was salutory and the study of this period stands as a lesson to the whole world.

FIRST ISSUE OF NEW RED CROSS PAPER RECEIVED

Is Weekly Publication And Proposes To Cover All Phases Of Work

The first issue of the Red Cross Courier, newly instituted organ of the American Red Cross reached the China Central Committee's office here in the last mail from America. Published at Washington, D. C., on January 7, the new journal takes the form of a weekly newspaper and will supplant the bulletins formerly issued by national and divisional headquarters.

The Courier promises to publish news of Red Cross operations in every field, international, national, and community. Service to the ex-service man, disaster relief, health service, nursing, and child welfare work, will claim space from time to time in its pages, according to the editor.

The first number contains a welcome to the new publication from an old-time journalist, President Harding, articles on the "clean-up drive" among service men's hospitals, activity among the blind, flood relief work in southwestern United States, alleviation of the unemployment situation and the recent roll call. In the roll call report is a hundred percent record from Kansu province, Tibet, where all six Americans are Red Cross members.

The newspaper also tells of the receipt of a silken banner at national headquarters, expressing Chinese gratitude for American Red Cross famine relief operations.

Subscriptions at one dollar gold per year are being received at the headquarters of the China Central committee, 3 Canton Road.

General Chen Chiung-ming, in reply, has proposed the following two conditions: (1) that a united support be given to President Sun Yat-sen, and (2) that an absolute allegiance be sworn to the Southern Government and the unity of China be effected by the said Government, which has been established according to the Chinese law.

In reply to these conditions a telegram of over 1,000 words reached Lieutenant General Huang from General Wu Pei-fu a few days ago.

Opium Offenders Draw Heavy Fines

Appearing in the Mixed Court for the same offense for the second time in three weeks, two Chinese drew heavy fines for opium selling at 605 Canton Road yesterday.

The place was searched by Sub-Inspector Wilson and Detective Sergeant McDermott, who gave evidence of finding 160 packets of opium, to the value of over $1,000.

The place was ostensively a medicine shop, but Sub-Inspector Wilson stated that about the only stock visible which might be considered as medicine was a half-dozen bottles of ginseng.

The accused were defended by Mr. L. K. Kentwell, who put in a plea that a third defendant was merely an apprentice and could have had nothing to do with the drug found.

The Court, Assessor Hutchison and Magistrate Tsang, fined the principal $1,000 and the other previous offender $500. The alleged apprentice was assessed $50.

Grand Nat'l Steeplechase To Run Today At Kiangwan

Morriss' Entries Expected To Repeat Its Victory In Champions

Steeplechasers, mafoos and ponies that have not won a race in the first three days of Kiangwan's New Year meeting have the off-day card today almost wholly to themselves.

The two feature races are the Kiangwan Grand National Steeplechase and the Griffin Steeplechase cup, with a sub-Griffins Handicap bidding with the mafoo's event for secondary popular favor. Five of the ten events are for non-winners at this meeting; four provide for post entries.

In the handicap eighteen griffins are entered, but two of which have won at the present meet. Western Union however cashed twice in the first three days of the meet and will doubtless rank as favorite over the one other griffin to qualify, Little Inspector.

The Steeplechase cup for griffins has a list of 21 entrants, none of which have ever yet faced a jump in public. Several good stables have ponies entered.

The fifth race, The Nursery Handicap for griffins has a big entry list which includes about all of the youngsters which have shown anything so far in the meet, including Social Union, Altameter, Chalcacite, Respective, five good Meguro ponies, and others. Social Union will doubtless be favorite.

The Grand National Steeplechase seems to favor Henry Morriss and his four entries: Petersfield, Letchfield, Finchfield and Patsfield. The stable has won the race at Kiangwan for the last three years, and Petersfield and Letchfield have been in the first three places more than once. Old Bill which finished second last year, has not been running true to his best form at this meeting and may not be in at the finish. Social Union or Djemnah may win a place from Morriss' horses, with Liability always a possibility.

Racing tomorrow commence at 1 p.m.

Few Changes In First Division

London, England, Jan. 2.—When the fact is considered that only 15 goals were scored in the First Division of the English Association Football League on November 26, it is not surprising that there are low totals in the list of individual goal-scorers. The first three men, C. M. Buchan, Sunderland; Joseph Anderson of Burnley, and Horace Barnes, Manchester City, in the order named, did not obtain a single goal between them. W. T. Roberts of Preston North End was one of the two men who obtained more than one apiece, and he rose to the level of Barnes in the third place. The only other changes of importance were occasioned by Andrew Wilson and Robert Kelly, of Middlesbrough and Burnley, respectively, scoring solitary goals for their respective teams. The former took the place vacated by Roberts, joining W. H. Walker, Aston Villa, and J. W. Spence, Manchester United, on the "10" mark, and the latter became one of five men who could lay claim to a total of 8. The list of the first ten goal getters follows:

Player and club—	Goals
C. M. Buchan, Sunderland	15
Joseph Anderson, Burnley	13
Horace Barnes, Manchester City	12
W. T. Roberts, Preston North End	12
W. H. Walker, Aston Villa	10
J. W. Spence, Manchester United	10
Andrew Wilson, Middlesbrough	10
B. Cross, Burnley	9
James Gill, Cardiff City	9
I. W. Dickson, Aston Villa	8

Public School Win Over Americans

During the Chinese New Year the first Senior XI School League match of the Eastern term was played in the Hongkew Park between the Public School and the Shanghai American School.

From the outset the Public School attacked and it was obvious that the American School XI were matched against a more experienced and capable team. They maintained a plucky defensive game, however, and at half-time the Public School were only leading by three goals to nil. In the second half the American school forward line were not able to do much to relieve the pressure on their defense and the Public School increased their lead by six, the final score standing at six to nil in favor of the Public School. Cumine (2), Jesu (2), Sadar and Levis were responsible for the goals scored.

FOOTBALL CARD THIS AFTERNOON HAS SIX GAMES

With fair and cold weather promised for today there is good prospect for the resumption of league football play. Six matches are scheduled for today, three in the first division and three in the second.

The match between the Engineers and the Police on the Polo Ground will undoubtedly furnish the best competition among the bigger clubs. The Engineers after their defeat by the Club for their own challenge cup a week ago should be in a mood to win. The Police however are always strong, and will force the Marineers to play hard for everything they get today. Other first League matches, Customs vs. Recs and Portuguese vs. Xaviers, both at Hongkew will not provide the good football of the first named contest.

In the second division the Club and the Navy, first and second in their division meet on the S. F. C. grounds in what should be a thriller. The next two elevens in the table, the School and the Rangers also are matched, for the Police grounds. The Portuguese-Jewish on Widow's Monument field match completes the program.

Players for the clubs which have given out their lists are:

Engineers; A. McLean, V. Elliott, T. W. R. Wilson (Capt.), R. Tomlinson, G. Crawford, M. D. Marshall, A. Clark, T. Wade, J. Falconer, G. Norris, A. S. Russell. Reserves: W. Archer, H. Rowson, R. Condie.

S. R. C.: Quincey, Smith, Biggs, Manley, Mears (Capt.), Emamooden, Manley, Ollerdessen, Evans, Sofoulis and Stacey. Reserves: Marshall, McKenzie, Drairseldt and Gifford.

Shanghai Public School: W. Brockett, T. Schneider, P. Madar (Capt.), A. Remedios, J. Mahon, C. Siemseen, T. Madar, M. Moosa, J. Johansson, D. Drake, E. Cumine. Reserve: A. Jesu.

Shanghai Football Club: Messrs. R. Phillips, G. F. Forshaw, D. E. M. Drummond, A. Loonis, G. E. De Man, S. H. MacMurray, B. Lawrie Smith, J. K. Ewing, J. Konig, E. T. Nash and F. G. Harrison. Reserves: R. B. Roach, R. H. Norton and A. Whittaker.

Rangers; J. M. Pearson: A. P. Goldman, J. B. Brown; L. G. Day, G. J. Day, A. E. Johnson: H. H. Nash, E. A. Brodie, B. McCarthy, K. C. Evans, C. W. Smith. Reserve: C. N. Brown.

Rickard Is The King Of Sport Promoters

Tex Rickard

Tex Richard claims the Championship in the Promotion of Sports. He lays claim to the title by reason of the fact that he has entertained no fewer than 2,247,127 persons in the last fifteen months. He has swelled Uncle Sam's coffers to the amount of $535,317.15 in taxes, part of which went to Father Knickerbocker for the State tax. In addition to this, Tex paid $300,000 in taxes for the Dempsey-Carpentier world's heavyweight battle, which was staged in Jersey City last July. During that space of time Rickard staged several boxing and wrestling championships, opened the largest swimming pool in the world, put his shoulder behind amateur sports, including swimming and boxing, and popularised professional basketball. This is some record, and we fail to find a man who will stand up and dispute it.

RACE CLUB ELECTIONS

At the Annual General Meeting of the Shanghai Race Club held last night, the following gentlemen were elected Stewards for 1922:

Messrs. G. H. Stitt (Chairman), C. H. Arnold, A. W. Burkill, P. W. O. Liddell, C. G. S. Mackie, W. L. Merriman, H. H. Read.

CENTER COLLEGE LOSE IN FINAL GAME TO TEXAS

Dallas (Tex.), Jan. 2.—Entering today's game against Center College, otherwise known as the "Prayin' Colonels from Kentucky," with the betting odds heavily against them, Texas A. and M. football eleven today created the sensation of the season by defeating the famous Kentucky eleven, 22 to 14.

It was the first defeat for the "Prayin' Colonels" this season and also the first time that the conquerors of Harvard saw their goal line crossed. It was Center's third defeat in six years.

The sensational "Bo" McMillin and all-American end "Red" Roberts were helpless before the impregnable defense of the Aggies. The Texas line was unbreakable. Sanders, the Aggie left half, broke up the Center aerial attack and the A. and M. ends proved unpassable.

Texas scored in the first period, when Miller punted for A. and M. and Bartlett received the punt behind the Center goal line and was downed in his tracks for a touchback. The second period was scoreless.

In the third fumbles proved costly to both sides. Center scored when McMillan, for A. and M., fumbled on his own 35-yard line and Tanner recovered and ran to A. and M.'s 3-yard line, where Snoddy carried the ball over for a touchdown.

Roberts kicked goal.

Following in the face of this A. and M. scored when Covington fumbled a kick-off and Murray recovered the ball on Center's 30-yard line, from where a forward pass, Miller to Wilson, scored a touchdown. McMillan kicked goal.

Texas scored again when Tanner fumbled on his own 20-yard line, and line bucks by Johnson and McMillan placed the ball within scoring distance. Wilson took the ball over on the next play and McMillan kicked goal.

In the fourth period both elevens scored. Winn of A. and M. intercepted one of "Bo" McMillin's forward passes and ran forty-five yards for the third A. and M. touchdown. McMillan missed goal. Center then scored on a forward pass, McMillin to Covington. Roberts kicked goal.

There was an attendance of 15,000 fans on hand.

PAPER 'UNTS POSTPONED

Owing to the bad going cross country the Paper Hunt arranged by the club for today has been postponed, as has also the Ladies Hunt which was scheduled to be run tomorrow.

Entries for the Hunt Handicap on next Saturday close at the Grand Stand at 7 p.m. today.

Boxers Enters Ring Stripped To A Smile

Peoria, Ill. Feb. 2.—When Jimmy Kelly, Chicago bantamweight boxer, threw off his bathrobe and stepped into the ring to shake hands with Stanley Everett here last night, he discovered that he was wearing nothing but smiles. His seconds hurriedly flung an overcoat around him and rushed him to his dressing room while the big crowd present for the bout roared with laughter.

Fred Fulton Wants To Meet Dempsey

New York, Jan. 14.—Fred Fulton heavyweight boxing contender, arrived in town from Minneapolis yesterday with his manager, Benny Haskell. Fulton wants a bout with Jack Dempsey, he says, tut as a preliminary, he expects to take on Harley Madden and Bill Brennan. Fulton has fought two successful bouts in the Middle West lately, knocking out Jack Herman of Chicago in two rounds at Rochester, Minn., and beating Carl Morris at Winnipeg, Manitoba. Manager Haskell brought two other Minnapolis boxers with him, Jack Josephs, a lightweight, and Danny Dillon, a bantamweight.

Amtraco And Soochow Fives Beat Rowing Club, Both Sides

"Y" Gets First Win On Forfeit Of Anderson Meyer; Two Games Today

Many things happened in basketball last night.

The Amtraco five beat the Bowside 38-17 and resumed their place at third position which the American School had usurped the night before.

Anderson Meyer dropped to the bottom of the league by forfeiting their match to the "Y" five.

The said "Y" team earned credit for its first win of the season, without having to play it, and climbed out of the cellar.

The Strokeside was beaten in a clash of Nashes and Johnsons with the faculty of the Soochow University, after a hard fought game, by a score of 31-23.

All games were played on the Rowing Club floor.

The first match, that between the American Trading Co. and the Bowside was all easy going for the hong. Tinkham was missing from the lineup, but Smith and Nichols took good care that their side scored often. The Bowside played two pick-ups, and considering everything did well. Hale did the bulk of the scoring.

The Soochow-Strokeside match was worth watching. The visitors have a real basketball outfit, and they kept the home team trailing the score throughout. They led by but one basket until within five minutes of final time when a little extra spurt put them out with a comfortable margin. W. L. Nash, the visitors' center played a strong game, basketing sixteen points for his team. Johnson his team-mate also stood well out with his speed and general basketball ability.

Soochow plays the American School this morning at 10 o'clock at the "Y" and this afternoon goes to Yangtszepoo for a match with the Shanghai College faculty.

Exchange Fluctuations

Asia Banking Corporation

February 3, 1922

Spot bar silver was unchanged in London yesterday and forward up ⅛d.

The New York price advanced to 66⅛ cents, and the London-New York cross rate to 430⅛.

The only changes in the official quotations here today were a rise in the Gold Dollar rate to 74¼ and a drop in the Franc rate to 885.

The market opened on the easy side, a small amount of business being done at the opening in Sterling at 3-5⅛ for February, 3-5⅛ for March and 3-4⅞ for April.

Gold Dollars at the opening were done at 74⅛ for February, 73¾ for March and 73 for April.

However, these rates did not last long and, as the day advanced, the market weakened and, late in the afternoon there were no sellers of Sterling at better than 3-5 for February, 3-4⅞ for March and 3-4⅛ for April.

The best sellers of Gold Dollars at that time were offering 73⅛ for February, 73 for March and 72¾ for April.

There were buyers at a fraction above these rates, the general undertone of the market being weak.

London report their silver market as being steady, India being a small buyer there yesterday, although it is not unlikely that the price will ease off following our weak market here. New York's cable of February 1st advises that there are sellers at the official quotation, and no buyers.

Singapore Rubber Auction

Singapore, January 18, 1922

Following were the prices realised at our Auction this week:

	Singapore per lb. @ Cts.
Sheet:
Awarded Standard Ribbed	35⅛
Equal to Standard Ribbed	35
Off Quality Ribbed	34½-29½
Crepe:
Equal to Standard 1st Latex	35-34⅛
Off Color Latex	34-30
Fine Brown	31½-31
Good Brown	30½-28
Good Dark	29-25
Barky	24-23

Catalogued for sale 1,884,104 lbs. (about 841 tons).

Offered 1,503,119 lbs. (about 671 tons).

Sold 1,313,573 lbs. (about 586 tons).

During the past week heavy liquidations have taken place in London, which combined with large arrivals in New York have depressed all markets. London has been reported down to 10d. and New York to 19½ cents. The local market has been in an unsettled state in consequence hereof, and values generally have dropped 3 to 5 cents respectively for spot and forward positions.

Prices realised at the weekly auction show a heavy decline on the week, and buyers were rather reserved all through the day owing to a further decline being expected.

There were catalogued 841 tons, out of which 671 tons were offered and 586 tons changed hands.

Awarded Standard Ribbed Smoked Sheet sold at 35½ cents, but many lots were withdrawn when buyers reduced their bids to 35 cents only. Although a few lots fetched 36 cents, the market price must be given at the above figures.

Sheet equal to Standard found buyers at 35 cents, which marks a decline of 2 cents.

Off Quality Sheet was shown a fair amount of interest.

No sales of Awarded Standard 1st Latex took place as sellers withdrew at bids of 35 cents.

Crepe equal to Standard and Off Color Latex Crepe were difficult of sale.

Brown, Dark and Barky Crepes declined on an average about 2 cents.

At the close the market tendency was easier.

Cotton Market

Messrs. J. Spunt and Company write as follows in their cotton market report:

China Cotton:—The opening of the cotton market, after the Chinese New Year holidays, displayed no general activity and prices remained with hardly any fluctuations on the same level as last reported with a steady tendency at the close. The general feeling is that prices will continue in such position without much excitement one way or the other, as spinners are reported to be carrying sufficient stocks for temporary requirements and unless any material improvement takes place in the yarn market, the rates on the local staple will continue in its present trend. Under these circumstances it is not permissible to advise heavy commitments on either side of the market and conservatism should be the keynote of all operations in the near future. Tone of the market, Steady.

(Special To The China Press)

Geneva, Feb. 2.—A telegram has been received from the International Russian Relief Commission which is investigating famine conditions in Russa with a view to supervising relief work, stating that members of families are killing and eating each other in the Wrenburg region. It goes on to describe the most horrible circumstances under which such people are living.

British Oppose Japanese Plan

(Reuter's Service)

London, Feb. 2.—Sheffield electro-plate manufacturers are not a little disturbed owing to the proposal from Japan that this class of Sheffield goods should be shipped to Japan unfinished and have the electro process applied there. The manufacturers declare that this process is the essence of the quality of Sheffield goods, and they intend to make very definite representations to the Japanese Commercial Mission regarding this matter.

Philippines Hemp Crop Less In 1921

(Special To The China Press)

The total production of Manila hemp in 1921 was 692,822 bales, against 1,051,601 bales in 1920, a reduction of about 30 percent which is to be ascribed to the indifferent demand, especially in the United States, which is the chief consumer of this Philippine product.

By provinces, Albay produced 78,450 bales, against 195,689 in 1920; Leyte 207,661 against 256,224; Camarines 40,307 against 95,645; Sorsogon 86,651 against 104,718; Samar 52,757 against 85,055; North Mindanao 52,751 against 129,019; South Mindanao 131,107 against 126,933; Cebu 1,933 against 5,846; Negros 290 against 7,611; Mindoro and various other provinces 30,432 against 32,155.

The matter of rescinding or continuing administrative order No. 13, of the director of agriculture, under which hemp below US-J will not be inspected and passed for export, is now before the legislature for consideration. It appears that the governor general, after a careful study of the facts, has reached the conclusion that it does not rest with him to act on the order. The law gives the director of agriculture the authority he exercised in issuing the order, and the law would have to be amended in order to deprive him of the authority. As the preponderance of opinion reaching Manila from the provinces is in favor of the order, indications are that it will remain in force indefinitely.

Cold and rather fine weather. Winter monsoon all along the China coast. Rough weather between Nippon and the Bonin.

And Now, What?

BY JOSEF W. HALL

PEKING has frequently, within the past six years, found itself without a responsible head of government. But never has the filling of the post of Premier looked so difficult as today.

Wu Pei-fu has just kicked out Chang Tso-lin's appointee. It is a bad loss of face for the Fengtien lord, but is not so bad as if the defunct Premier were of his own faction. Since he is of a faction with which Chang Tso-lin made only temporary affiliation, Mukden can permit his fall without taking up the challenge of arms.

Indeed, there is nothing which Chang Tso-lin wishes so much to avoid, at the present moment, as the arbitrament of arms in his dispute with Wu Pei-fu. He knows that Wu is by far the better military strategist, the while he boasts that, compared to himself in political strategy, Wu is but a child.

And so, while Wu waits for him to challenge the cause of the Chiaotung cabinet, he waits for Wu to take up the burden of constructing a new administration on the ruins of the one which his telegraphic thunderbolts have cast down. And Peking and its President wait as usual, with only one policy and rule of action—OPPORTUNISM—and watch both the warlords.

The fact needs no further pointing out, to those who have given as much as a passing thought to the effect of Chinese psychology upon Chinese politics, that the disadvantage is his upon whom rests the burden of action. Each rival faction is now endeavoring to throw this burden of action upon the other. Chang Tso-lin has wired to Wu Pei-fu suggesting that, since he does not want Liang Shih-yi in the Premiership he suggest some nominees from among whom the President may select a Premier. Wu Pei-fu has replied, non-committally, to the effect that there exist, in China, many honest and scholarly men from among whom the President might choose. This last is a sly fibe at the Mukden politicians who are scorned by the more educated Chihli leaders as being "tradesmen."

If Wu Pei-fu sets up a Cabinet, Chang Tso-lin will immediately destroy it, thus turning the tables on Wu. Therefore, none of the "Chihli" leaders, as Wang Shih-chen, Chow Hsueh-hsi, or Chang of Shantung will come forward at this time. In view of what has happened, Chang Tso-lin can hardly propose another Cabinet list. And the cleavage between the two factions appears to have become so sharp as to preclude the possibility of another compromise or coalition cabinet, such as that of Chin Yun-peng.

Therefore Dr. Yen was right when, in resigning his unaccepted position of Acting Premier, he opined that it will be a considerable time before the office is substantively filled.

This impasse may continue until the two rivals are forced to end it by appeal to force. But, while Wu Pei-fu waits, the more crafty Chang Tso-lin schemes. The President has already appealed to the Chihli leaders to establish a Cabinet. They, of course, decline. A government-less Peking will rapidly lead to complications—which Chang Tso-lin, with the use of a little money, or the secret granting of a short license to some of his troops in this neighborhood, can easily encourage. Without a responsible head, the financial situation must become more and more involved, leading to internal unrest and foreign pressure.

For the salvation of China from such a perilous situation, the President, having appealed in vain to the Chihli-ites, must now turn to Chang Tso-lin. And Chang, with the millions which he has stored against such an opportunity, and the troops which he has strategically stationed about Peking, will come in as the guarantor of order and financial obligations, thanked by the President, and acclaimed by the people.

His triumph, of course, may precede his fall. At the best, his will be a repitition of the Yuan Shih-kai drama.

But he is skillfully laying his plans. He has wired the President not to worry because he has no Premier in front of him, as long as he has Chang Tso-lin behind him.

The Purse Habit

BY W. A. McKEEVER

Widely Known Lecturer and Author and a National Authority on Juvenile Problems.

Has your boy a pocketbook? Is his hand trained by habit to reach directly for it when needed and to defend it when mistreated?

If your young son—or your grown son, for that matter—depends on loose change in his pocket as a source of payment of his bills, he is a dependent, loose spender. So the knowing ones have just decided.

Loose change, loose spender; purse habit, careful spender. How does that sound as a maximum of thrift for the young? A group of parents, after spending two hours in a conference over teaching thrift have practically agreed that the test is a sound one.

Train your boy from the first to use a purse and request him never to let it become entirely empty. Rather than spend the last nickle, go without the thing desired. Get the habit of being never broke.

Further elements of the "purse habit" for the boy requires that he always carry his purse in the same pocket, that he learn to shift it from one garment to another when changing clothes, and that he think of its safety when retiring at night.

The girl and her money also came in for a brief discussion. It was concluded that girls are often spendthrifts because they are not taught definitely to be anything else, that they are injudicious in spending and making investments purely from lack of instruction, and they need the benefit of every possible device of thrift training quite as much as do their brothers.

Also it was urged that girls should be led to acquire the "purse consciousness"—the habit of keeping the purse in a fixed place, keeping a small "nest egg" in it, and keeping it out of reach of the purloiners.

Furthermore, the parent must realise that "loose change" is not only a step to loose spending, but that the next logical step is loose living. "Without money sense there is no common sense, and the reckless use of money slowly develops into sort of disease of the mind and morals."

WHERE DO YOU GET ADVICE?

When you need counsel, to get out of difficulties, do you consult friends who occupy about the same station in life and who have had about the same experiences?

If so, how can you expect such persons to give you the advice which is beyond anything of which they have direct knowledge or experience—advice on matters which they have not been trained to consider and master?

Why not go to the person who has lifted himself out of the trench in which you are stationed, the man who has gone over the top?

The men who have been staggered and checked in their progress by just such problems as confront you are not the ones to advise you.

Without the ability to lift themselves how can you expect practical advice on how to extricate yourself from the position which baffles you?

Look around at the successful men and figure on what their problems have been on the way to eminence.

Don't go to Dick, Tom, and Harry for advice and suggestions on things they know nothing about or they themselves would have profited.

Go to the man who knows and then follow his instructions.

My Own Report -:- No. 4

By Jabin Hsu

(Mr. Hsu attended the Washington Disarmament Conference as staff correspondent of THE CHINA PRESS and THE EVENING STAR. He was also a special correspondent for the New York Herald, the Baltimore Sun and the San Francisco Chronicle. In this series of articles being written by him since his return from the United States, he gives to readers the first record of a Chinese journalist's close hand impressions of the world confab and draws some interesting conclusions.)

While China had a hundred and one grievances that she desired to bring up at Washington, popular expectation would have been fulfilled if three of the paramount issues had been adjusted to her satisfaction. The three issues were the Shantung controversy, Japan's special position in Manchuria and East Inner Mongolia, both a which came under the infamous 21 demands, and the matter of China's fiscal autonomy.

As I pointed out in my previous article, it is easy, perilously easy to give new guarantees, reiterate established principles and adopt idealistic formulae.

Practically all the powers represented at Washington had previous to November 12, 1921 signed documents assuring respect of the integrity of China and observing the "open door." Why should not they do it once more in Washington? Even if the ten proposals made by China were adopted without moderation, China could not be benefitted by anything unless they were at once applied to specific issues. Even if the Root principles were considered as suitable basis for the solution of China's problems, they would have less effect than the solemn treaties signed by Japan and other powers during the last three quarters of a century.

ONLY THE SHADOW

Experience of the foreign powers in China gives full assurance that declarations and agreements need not embarrass any one. In the light of what these declarations and agreements mean without the spirit of the signors behind the letter of that which is signed, what difference does it make to China? Ironically enough, the Root principles underwent a severe test, not after a lengthy duration, but immediately after their adoption. Shantung, the 21 demands and Chinese tariff ruined them before they had a fair trial. For all the three issues came strictly under the formulae. All three concerned the integrity of China and the first two the "open door" tradition.

There is absolutely no question in our minds that China had just claims in all the three paramount issues. Few delegates to the Washington Conference, however, understood the problems. Their knowledge was superficial. Whatever sympathy they had was based upon sentimentality rather than upon cool reasoning, still less upon altruism. The cases were presented by the Chinese delegation under adverse conditions, under an atmosphere least favorable to the Chinese.

When, as a result of the "good offices" offered by Arthur J. Balfour and Charles E. Hughes, the Shantung controversy was shunted off to outer darkness, Chinese patriots began to look for the beginning of the end of the conference. The so-called policy of expediency adopted by the conference to relieve it of diplomatic embarrassment, which the discussion of the question naturally involved, was conspicuous indication of the weakening of the idealistic tone of the gentlemen of the confab.

It was a sudden drift towards the old diplomacy, which optimistic Chinese thought had been buried by the United States side by side with her unknown dead at the outset of the conference.

OPPORTUNITY LOST

It was a great misfortune to China and to the world at large, that the Shantung question could not be approached with the directness similar to the naval problem, which after all was but the symptom and not the cause of world turmoil. A naval holiday without justly settling the Shantung question, hence removing a potential cause for international discord, is like the application of a local anaesthetic to a toothache without removing the irritating nerve. The ache increases when the effect of the drug wears off.

Balfour and Hughes and the whole world are aware of the fact that China had repeatedly, since the signing of the Versailles treaty, refused to enter into direct negotiation with Japan. We had always maintained that if Japan was sincere in her promise, made by her premier and cabled by him to the New York independent (that Japan would return Shantung and would keep her promise as "she had always kept her promises") and reaffirmed at Versailles, she needed no negotiation. All she had to do was to withdraw. The American Senate, where genuine popular sentiment is supposed to find it airing, approved the Chinese stand.

Every newspaper in the world has published something about Shantung since the signing of the Versailles Treaty. There need be no misconception as to the genuine aspiration of our people as contrary to the aim of Tokio. Japan had resorted to force of arms, threats, and then official corruption through her agents in Peking. Nevertheless diplomatic Europe and America allowed "wool to be pulled" over the public eyes to mask Tokio's real action. The atmosphere in Washington was befogged with thick smoke screens of the "good intentions" of Japan over Shantung just prior to the "conversations." In the midst of this fog China was told to settle matters with Japan. The cat and the canary were invited to go outside and talk over their eternal differences.

THE LOAN PROPOSAL

Late despatches from Washington indicate that the American delegation is trying to persuade Alfred Sze to accept the Japanese counter-offer to return the Shantung railway upon the payment of 54,000,000 gold marks or $30,000,000 to be effected in periodical installments lasting 15 years and to retain the Japanese chief engineer and accountant. It is also reported that the American delegation is of opinion that the changes in the Peking Cabinet is retarding the progress of the Washington Conference.

Whatever the final decision may be, the fate of Shantung is doomed and the fact remains that Japan at the very beginning of the conference wanted to discuss the issue with China in private session not so much for actual withdrawal from Shantung as the question of how much loot she would be able to retain in the shape of railroad control and other economic prizes. During the next fifteen years Japan may gamble on it that she will sometime hold a whip hand over the Peking Government as she did in 1915 and need not worry about the Chinese people. No one knows better than the Japanese that there are several ways of skinning a cat. Faced with the moral condemnation of the world, the Mikado's Government is quite willing to affirm and re-affirm China's sovereignty in Shantung, but it has not the slighest intention to relinquish its grip on the economic resources of the province except under great pressure.

During the events that marked the growth of the crisis which ended in the world war, the attention of the world was deflected from the Pacific questions and was concentrated upon European problems. Japan, however, adopted a policy which culminated in the presentation of the 21 Demands in 1915 to Yuan Shih-k'ai. She was pursuing, as the world could readily see, a policy of Pan-Asiaism similar to the pan-German policy, which brought Germany to ruin. The difference was that the Japanese policy was allowed to go unchalleged.

SAME OLD JAPAN

One of the prominent delegates from Tokio, upon his arrival in Washington, told the press that Japan in Washington was not the Japan of the 21 Demands. Indeed, Japan's economic exploitation, territorial expansion, paramount influence, political domination and Asiatic Monroe Doctrine were fully manifested in these demands. Japan had a chance to effect a change of policy in Washington. The wholesale abrogation of these demands would have meant a true change in her policy. But Japan refused to nullify them. She even refused to discuss them. And she had the support of America. Secretary Hughes immediately adjourned the meeting of the Far Eastern Committee sine die when Dr. Wang Chung-hui brought up the points for discussion.

After subtracting the Shantung clause and other minor issues, the 21 demands can be boiled down to the question of Manchuria. Japan claims the most important section of this territory because she fought in the Russo-Japanese War in 1905 when it was menaced. Japanese journalists in Washington claimed that if it had not been Japan, the vast stretch of fertile soil would long have been fallen into the hands of the Czar. Japanese pressmen forget that the Russo-Japanese war was also a conflict for Japan's self-preservation. She was amply rewarded. China contributed her share by compensating the islanders with the economic privileges of the rich plain. Japan's pressmen further claim Manchuria under the pretext of her national security. She desired to make use of it as a shelter from Russian menace.

Did the Japanese newspapermen ever consider China's national security. If Chinese were to follow the same line of argument, they should at once go out and snatch every bit of territory contingent to the vast area and enjoy the highway robbery without external intervention.

AN ENTERING WEDGE

The truth of the matter is that Manchuria and Mongolia constitute a powerful wedge for the division of China. With her strong arms girdled round the waist of China, Japan would be in a position to dominate and eventually subjugate China just as she subjugated Korea unless our people at once awaken to the growing menace and refrain from looking for philanthropic results from parleys and conversations and set to work to do some genuine honest to God work to put our own house in order.

Manchuria's fate is nailed when the 21 demands were thrown out of the conference. China, has been deprived of a vital part of her anatomy. Another wall, not of material grandeur, but of hatred and suspicion, has been set up between the two peoples.

When a burglar is caught in your premises, the question of exit need not form a subject of argument. Japan argues that she took both Manchuria and Shantung not from China but from Russia and Germany. Does it avail anything to the victim when a thief gains entrance to his house by shooting off another? Japan's delegates maintain that she secured Shantung and Manchuria with "blood and treasure." This melodramatic feature rather appealed to the American public. Some newspapers became very sympathetic. Japanese forgot that a thief often loses "blood and treasure" in the course of his nefarious adventures. The loss did not purify her morals, nor does it relieve him from his responsibilities.

China's demand for her tariff autonomy was but dimly understood by European and American diplomats. Before the opium war in 1842, China enjoyed absolute freedom in the matter of her tariff. The limitation upon this right was first made in the year following when we signed treaties with Great Britain, the United States and Japan. The rule of the five percent advalorem was established. In 1858, when the price of commodities declined, a revision was made in compliance with the request of the powers, about 17 in number. Later prices mounted high, but no revision was asked for by the treaty powers.

It was not until in 1902 that another revision was made in order to provide sufficient funds for China to meet the obligations arising out of the Boxer rebellion. In that tariff the rate was calculated on the basis of the average price of 1897 and 1899. An attempt was made by China to revise the tariff, but owing to the difficulty in securing the unanimous consent of all the 17 powers, it failed. In 1918, after six long years of diplomatic negotiations, a revision was effected by a commission sitting in Shanghai. The new tariff yielded about three and a half percent ad valorem. China had lost of $300,000,000 in the 20 years since 1902.

WHAT CHINA WANTED

China's minimum demand was for as effective 12½ percent tariff, which had already been agreed to by the United States, Great Britain and Japan by treaties signed in 1902 and 1903, the only provision being that China should abolish her likin or the internal taxation system.

China further wanted full tariff autonomy after two years' clear working of the 12½ tariff had proved that free trade within the limits of Chinese territory is effective. After the presentation of this question by Wellington Koo, a special subcommittee was appointed to deal with it. The subcommittee consists of Senator Underwood, United States, chairman; Wellington Koo, China; Sir Robert Borden and Mr. Lampson, alternate, Great Britain; Mr. Hanihara, Japan; Baron de Cartier and M. Cartier, alternate, Belgium; Senator Albertini and Signor V. Fileti, alternate, Italy; Captain Ernesto Vasconcellos, Portugal, M. Sarraut, France and von Blokland, the Netherlands.

China's reasons for the required increase were that:

1. The existing customs regime in China constitutes an infringement of China's sovereign right to fix her own tariff.

2. It deprives China of the power of reciprocity arrangements with the foreign powers. While all foreign goods imported into China pay only five percent, Chinese goods exported to foreign countries have to pay duties of a maximum rate.

HALTS DEVELOPMENT

3. It constitutes a serious impediment upon the economic development of China.

4. As the system exists today, there is only one uniform rate and no differentiation of rates. It does not take into consideration the economic and social needs of the Chinese. China's tariff is unscientific.

5. The present tariff has occasioned a serious loss of revenue upon the China treasury.

6. The present regime make it exceedingly difficult for China to ask for a revision as it was shown in the past experience in 1912 and 1918.

7. Even if the effective five percent ad valorem were raised, the revenue thus collected will still be inadequate to meet the requirements of the Chinese in the performance of their administrative functions.

China fared badly in all her three paramount issues. The Shantung question, after numberless "conversations," remains to be hopeless in spite of the many suicidal concessions made by the Chinese delegates. The Washington Conference is legalising highway robbery just as the Versailles conference did. The Manchuria question has been ruled out of discussion once and will no doubt receive but summary discussion if it ever comes up again. The tariff question is still undergoing filibustering in the subcommittee and the most that can be expected is a mediocre concession. Up to the present, Japan only consents to an increase of 25 percent of the present rate, or an effective five percent, which China secured by treaty four score years ago.

The inconsistency of European and American diplomats is glaringly demonstrated in dealing with China's three paramount issues in the light of the four Root principles which they officially endorsed at the very same conference.

Bitter Memories

BY S. E. KISER

If you are not forsaken, how can you know or guess
The measure of my sorrow and bitter loneliness?
Say that my sighs are futile—how can you understand,
You that have never known how,
and never touched her hand!

You that have never known her
may say that I am weak
Because I grieve while gazing upon a world that's bleak;
But you have never listened to whispered words she spoke,
Nor touched her dainty fingers, nor felt their gentle stroke.

In fancy I behold her, confiding, fragile, fair,
Her cheek against my shoulder,
and leaving powder there;
And then there were those moments—no more, alas, to be
When she sat at the table, and looked acoss at me.

But that's all past forever; one who has specialised
In bootleg hootch is claiming the favor that I prized;
She loves him for his fortune with all its taints, alack!
The cash I squandered on her is never coming back.

You that have never known her will smile, perhaps, and say
That men's remembered lessons are those for which they pay;
But every night at bedtime a lump comes in my throat,
For, oh, I miss the powder she left upon my coat!

Universe Or Universes?

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS

Eminent Astronomer and Authority on Subjects of Scientific Interest.

The most astonishing discoveries now being made in astronomy relate to the most distant regions of the visible creation. In fact, they bear upon the question whether there is only one "universe," containing all objects within the range of our observation, or many "island universes" one of them being our own stellar system, marked out by the Galaxy or Milky Way. The first mentioned view is that of Harlow Shapley, director of the Harvard Observatory; for the second, which is of older date, though yet recent, H. D. Curtis, of the Allegheny Observatory, has lately appeared as protagonist.

Curtis regards the spiral nebulae as representing star islands in space, foreign to ours; Shapley holds that the spiral nebulae as well as the globular star clusters are subordinate, or attendant, parts of our aggregation. Neither, however, pretends to set a limit to space itself, or to the number of unknown systems that it may contain.

They talk, without turning a hair, of distances amounting to hundreds of thousands and millions of light-years—and why should they not, for thought runs easily on toward infinitey, even though it never can reach it any more than the boy can put his foot on the end of the rainbow!

Shapley does not deny that there may be other "universes" far outside our own, but he thinks that they are not within our range of vision, and particularly that the spiral nebulae are not some of them. In order to include within our galactic system these objects and the globular star clusters, which are also very distant, he expands the probable size of the visible universe (all our own system, though made up of diverse constituents) to ten times the diameter that Curtis is willing to assign to it.

In a sentence, according to the Shapley hypothesis, the diameter of the whole galactic system, the only system of whose existence we have visual or photographic evidence, is of the order of 300,000 light-years.

According to the other hypothesis the diameter is at the most not over 30,000 light-years, while the spiral nebulae ("island universe") resemble our own system and are distant from 500,000 to 10,000,000 light-years. Shapley, on the contrary, regards the spiral nebulae as probably truly nebulous in consitution, and driven away by some repulsive action from the galaxy of stars. The arguments on both sides are of fascinating interest, but I am not going to detail them here. They may be found summed up by Messrs. Shapley and Curtis themselves in Bulletin No. 11 of the National Research Council. But some facts have just come to light concerning one of the most remarkable of the spiral nebulae which may be considered to have an important bearing upon the subject. In Contribution No. 213 of the Mount Wilson Observatory, Adriaan Van Maanen describes the results of careful measurements of the position of eighty points in the spiral nebula "Messier 51," sometimes called the "whirlpool nebula." These points are included in two photographs of the nebula, one taken in 1910, the other in 1921, or eleven years apart, and the motions that they have undergone in the interval are revealed by the measurements.

If the reader can see a reproduction of a photograph of this nebula, which has often been printed in recent astronomical publications that ought to be found in any large public library, he will get a more vivid sense of the meaning of Van Maanen's revelation. The measurements show unquestionably that the great nebula is turning in a plane about at right angles to our line of sight. In the photographs it resembles a gigantic fiery pinwheel, spinning with great velocity, one large fragment having apparently been whirled off from the central mass around which it has made a complete turn, while continually retreating from it in a spiral curve.

A spectacular feature is the existence of a luminous spiral arm, sweeping out and round, like a section of partially uncoiled watchspring, which appears like a glowing "wake," stretching backward along the path by which the outer mass has traveled, and still marked with incandescent matter, which may be following in a persistent current.

The visible portions of the nebula consist of similar spiral arms, but no other relatively great mass appears to have separated from the central nucleus. But along the course of these arms knots of nebulous matter are more or less thickly distributed, affording excellent reference points by means of which motion may be detected. Scattered over the nebula there are also many small stars, evidently not physically connected with it and therefore available as reference points for comparison with the points in the nebula.

The result of the measurements is, in brief, to show that the whole mass appears to be turning around its center, but that the points employed for measurement are moving outward along the spiral arms, so that it is not a pure rotational movement, but a spiral outward motion. The rotational component of the motion indicates a rotation period of about 45,000 years.

Similar rotational velocities have been indicated in two other spiral nebulae, and they seem to support the Shapley hypothesis, for if those nebulae are other galaxies comparable in size with ours, the linear velocities corresponding with such a rotation period would be physically inconceivable.

Max Pemberton On Great Men And Late Hours

BY MAX PEMBERTON

(Brilliant British Author, in the London Daily Mail.)

What is all this nonsense about going to bed early and the ills which await the man who sits up late?

Reading the reports of recent controversies, I am driven to the conclusion that certain well-meaning if platitudinous reformers attribute half the evils of the day to late hours, and consider any man a sinner who is not between the sheets by 10 p.m. For them night is the time when the sons of Belial wander forth "flown with insolence and wine."

But what possible virtue or gain is there in going to bed at these ridiculous hours? Look at the men who observe them and you will discover a liverish race, heavy in speech, often totally lacking in wit, dull companions and soulless fellows. They make millions, we are told, and when they die posterity is bored by books which tell us how they lived on apples.

It is the rarest thing to discover in the story of a really great man that he went to bed early.

The mediaeval age, of course, had to obliterate itself at dusk, for its lamps were primitive and its tapers guttered.

Yet, consider the splendid eighteenth century! Walpole, Chatham, Fox, Pitt, Burke—imagine these giants of the night being asked to retire when the clock struck ten. For them the day was hardly aired until the supper table was spread. They spent historic nights at Westminster in a House of Commons where men crowed like cocks, sprawled on benches, whistled, fought and cursed, and generally did the nation's business better than it had been done before.

Gladstone, of course, was a late bird when the House was sitting, and he and Disraeli generally got to grips about midnight. This present House or Commons rarely goes home with the milk, and we see the consequence in universal bankruptcy and ruin.

And what memories one has of delightful all-night sittings with Irving, Toole, Kemble, and Tree, the great talkers of twenty years ago. People cannot talk now. They go to bed too early.

'Pussyfoot' Johnson Sees A 'Dry' Ceylon

"Pussyfoot" Johnson, who has returned to the United States from an extensive trip in the East, gave the following interview to the London Daily Herald before embarking for America, in which he predicted success for prohibition in India:

"India wants prohibition," said he. "Ceylon wants it—and Ceylon will get it in two years. Everywhere resolutions against drink were carried."

"And India is a hot place to go dry!" suggested the interviewer.

"Yep," said Pussyfoot, merrily. "But the climate didn't hurt me. It's made me fatter, and I'm feeling fine!"

"Pussyfoot" spent ten sweltering weeks in India. He covered over 7,000 miles of Indian territory, and, speaking at the rate of from one to eight times a day, he addressed some 200 meetings.

To his delight, he discovered that the Punjab already has a local option law, and that local option "propositions" are before the powers that be in other districts, too!

"Lord Reading," declared Mr Johnson "is disposed to govern India with some consideration for the wishes of the people—even with regard to drink.

"And while the British administration has not been very helpful in bringing about prohibition, I think we are approaching the time when it will be conceded.

"Some of the Governors, though not themselves prohibitionists, are favorable to prohibition now, because they want to satisfy the demands of the people so far as they can.

"I have visited all the important places in India, and I have found an astonishing degree of co-operation in all the different religions on the prohibition question.

"The Viceroy gave me a 'dry' lunch—and I attended other luncheons, too, which were not so dry. But what other people had to drink didn't intoxicate me.

"Anyway, the fellowship was good, and the success of the trip is beyond my wildest dreams."
